FALL 2020 NEWSLETTER

COMING TOGETHER DURING A PANDEMIC

Mercy Housing has had an outpouring of heartwarming support from community organizations, churches, volunteers, and donors like you during the pandemic. Your food and technology donations have made a big difference for residents struggling with hunger, those that are at-risk to leave their homes, and families struggling with virtual learning.

Donated food and cleaning supplies made it possible for thousands of people to live with more confidence and stability at this critical time. Residents have homes to social distance in, but our services go beyond four walls and a roof. Because of the teamwork and collective efforts of so many volunteers, we address other key issues like making sure everyone has food on the table. Over the summer, pantries were filled, meals prepared, and fridges were full. Thanks to their insight and ability to work closely with residents, food and cleaning supply delivery constantly evolves with day-to-day changes.

Thanks to donations of laptops and hot-spots Mercy Housing can better address the digital divide – disparities in access to reliable internet and devices – at communities. This has been a concern for Mercy Housing even before the pandemic. Coronavirus only exacerbated this issue, with families being forced to do school virtually from home. As soon as social distancing began, we teamed up with our partners and community leaders to make sure that residents had the access they need to education and job resources now that everything is online.

We have also received generous donations of toiletries, paper towels, antibacterial soap, toilet paper, and hand sanitizer. Fun packs of games and puzzles help residents to enjoy quiet days at home and find entertainment and learning opportunities whenever they like.

As the pandemic takes a toll, Mercy Housing has found strength and assurance facing these challenges together, with supporters and residents, working toward brighter futures for all. The mercy that everyone has shared with residents keeps us full of hope. We cannot thank you enough for the essential part you have played. These are tough times, but Mercy Housing residents are staying strong. We truly value your contributions – you are making a difference in the lives of residents most affected by the pandemic. ♥ like you are essential to our success. Together, we imagined communities that are affordable, stable, and healthy – you are helping us to make this a reality, bringing certainty to an uncertain world for families, seniors, veterans, and people with special needs that are living on extremely low incomes.

The core of our mission is housing justice, and we firmly believe that housing justice is social justice. Listening to and closely working with residents keeps us grounded to the hopes and dreams of the great people that call Mercy Housing home. We are making significant, positive change that is needed for communities to be more inclusive and equitable. Our Racial Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion team has been doing groundbreaking work to turn conversation into action as communities across the country address systemic racism in society.

I am overjoyed by the resilience and selflessness that residents and staff continue to show during this turbulent year. The way Mercy Housing quickly evolved with the changes associated with the pandemic, reveals how dedicated we are to the people we serve. Tripling food distribution to residents over spring and summer was a breathtaking accomplishment, as residents were once again reminded that communities care about them and need them to keep neighborhoods vibrant.

You make our work possible. I thank you and Mercy Housing communities across the nation thank you, for allowing us to bring respect, justice, and mercy to the people that need it most.

Live in Hope,

Ismael Guerrero,
Mercy Housing President & CEO

SINGING SONGS OF SOLACE

Quarantine and social isolation are hard on everyone, especially seniors living with lower incomes. Feelings of loneliness and fear can hurt daily life. But Mercy Housing residents, staff, and volunteers are finding solutions. Providing residents with what they need to continue living full and productive lives requires creativity. Two caring volunteers in Aurora, IL, Caleb and Abby, heard that the seniors at Constitution House were sheltering in place, and this brother-and-sister duo wanted to bring a song to residents' hearts and a smile to their faces. If these challenging times have taught our organization anything, it's that there are people of all ages looking to help out at communities.

Caleb is 14, a gifted keyboardist while Abby, age 13, plays the violin. They provided mini concerts in the past for residents at Constitution House and were thrilled to bring their musical talents back once again. With a little help from their dad, their mobile roadshow performed twice so residents could watch and listen to joyous music. Folks sat in the parking lot, opened their windows, and viewed from balconies to enjoy the little concerts from a safe distance.

Caleb and Abby provided residents with more than entertainment, they offered hope, showing these seniors that their community loves them and cares about them. Residents cheered and clapped from their windows, and our office has been touched by all the calls of gratitude for the serenade.

Mercy Housing has seen so many examples of compassionate resident and community engagement during the pandemic, from concerts like these, to balcony exercise classes, and many food and supply drives. Residents regularly tell us how much they appreciate the support they receive at Mercy Housing, and your gifts make it all possible. ❤️ just imagine.

Mercy Housing thanks everyone that attended and supported our Just Imagine virtual gala on September 10. Residents, donors, staff, and supporters like you truly make an impact by supporting the Just Imagine Fund. Together, we raised over $650,000. We cannot thank you enough for supporting the people and communities that need it most.

These donations have touched the lives of thousands of families, seniors, veterans, and people with special needs – the wonderful people that call Mercy Housing home. Your support continues to help people to pursue the kind of life they want for themselves, people like Seeta.

During the event, Seeta, a resident at Mercy Housing, was interviewed by our new President & CEO Ismael Guerrero. After losing her father in a civil war, Seeta and her family moved to Colorado from the Ivory Coast. They found refuge at Grace Apartments, a loving community specially created to serve immigrants and refugees. Mercy Housing has been her home and helped her find a sense of place for many years.

Seeta is an ambitious college student at Metropolitan State University of Denver, studying to be a social worker, in hope of helping communities. She is a bright and powerful example of what imagining a better future looks like when someone has more than four walls and a roof – they have a loving and supporting home. With a passion for social justice and activism, her charisma and drive are giving others the chance to imagine a better world. ♥

► Seeta was grateful to have Mercy Housing during many challenging transitions in her life.

The power and strength of your impact will be felt for generations to come through our Resident Services programming. This year's fund will:

- Increase resident participation in Mercy Housing's industry leading Resident Services
- Strengthen resident and community engagement to address critical issues
- Train frontline, onsite Property Management and Resident Services staff in innovative approaches to community building
- Grow a sense of connectedness, neighborliness, and overall wellbeing
- Further trauma-sensitive best practice techniques for onsite staff
- Broaden a values-based culture of respect, justice, and mercy amongst staff, residents, and partners
- Listen to residents to bring their voices to the forefront to measure Mercy Housing's effectiveness, and build data-driven industry leadership in affordable housing

PARTNERING TO BUILD HEALTHY COMMUNITIES

WELLS FARGO | wellsfargo.com

FARGO

Partnerships are absolutely essential to Mercy Housing's mission. During our Just Imagine celebration, we celebrated our collaboration with Wells Fargo and thanked them for their incredible support.

Wells Fargo & Company is a diversified community-based financial services company that serves one in three households in the U.S. and is a top community lending and investment provider in support of the development of multi-family homes. Founded in 1852 with its headquarters in San Francisco, Wells Fargo's vision is to satisfy its customers' financial needs and help them succeed financially.

In 2019, the Wells Fargo Foundation launched a new philanthropic strategy anchored around unlocking economic opportunity for people and communities by addressing housing affordability, small business growth and financial health, investing $455 million in grants to national and community-based nonprofits. This includes a $1 billion philanthropic commitment to address housing affordability solutions by 2025.

Wells Fargo and Mercy Housing's relationship dates back to 1994, uniting both organizations with a shared vision to create powerful change in which everyone can have an affordable place to call home.

With more than 100 grants made in the past decade, Wells Fargo's support has impacted each one of Mercy Housing's five regional business centers, across the country. Wells Fargo is particularly proud to support the construction of Sunnydale Block 6 in San Francisco, a six-story building that will provide 167 permanently affordable homes. In collaboration with Mercy Housing, the re-envisioned Sunnydale neighborhood will be affordable for up to 1,700 low- and middle-income families. Mercy Housing recognizes Wells Fargo for its leadership in support of inclusive, equitable, and mixed-income communities across the nation. ♥

YOU CAN HELP A FAMILY THAT'S STRUGGLING TO FIND A HOME

Imagine not knowing where you will sleep tomorrow. For too many Americans struggling to get by, they put their health and safety at risk just to keep a roof over their heads. While unemployment is at an all-time high, homelessness grows.

Today, for your gift of $50 to the Just Imagine Fund, a family will avoid homelessness, and instead have a stable, affordable home at Mercy Housing where they can achieve their dreams.

Now more than ever, there are people that need you.

Through the Just Imagine Fund, you can give a family the chance to live in a stable, healthy, and affordable community – a community with quality services that can give them the skills they need to build a better life.

Because of you, they can have a home with supportive staff to guide and counsel them, with many opportunities to explore new possibilities like practical skills and education.

All it takes is $50 to join your neighbors in the fight against the affordable housing crisis. You can save lives and keep a family off the streets in a home that provides much needed services.

By giving to Mercy Housing, you are not only giving a home, you are giving a family options. You are opening up their imaginations for what is possible. Don't we all deserve a safe, affordable home and a supportive community to achieve our dreams?

Thank you in advance for your gift.

Live in hope

P.S. Imagine a better world where people have housing and the support they need. You can help a family that's struggling to find a home for a gift of $50 today.
